

2020 District-Level Delegate Election Results

In Congressional districts where delegate gender was TBD, the presidential campaigns agreed upon the following rule: The Biden delegate is the candidate with the most votes. The Sanders delegate is the candidate with the most votes who is the opposite gender of the Biden candidate with the most votes.

Under the FDP Delegate Selection Plan, if a Congressional district lies within more than one county its district-level delegates cannot all come from the same county. Thus the winning delegate might not always be the one with the highest votes.
